Fall Of Alams.

To Texans, whether by birth or adoption, the Alamo acone which opened the southwestern episode was the most stirring of the sacred Alamo was shown with Travis. Bonliam, Bowie and Crockett impersonated by William Marr. J. A. Dick, Emmett Hines and Charles R. Loomis while Claiborne Adams, Julius Krakauser and A. H. Rhodes were the scouts. They marked of the line of self-sacrifice for Texas and all crossed the line, even Bowie, who was wounded and had to be carried across on his cot. Then was chown Mrs. Dickinson the sois survivor, with her litle barefooled girl. This part was laken by Mrs. Winchester Cooley who stood in front of a Texas flag with her little daughter Marionith standing beside her. This tableau had a thrill in it which silenced rather than inspired appliance.
